ONLY 12 per cent of the people of Arkansas have access to any kind of public library, so a State Planning Board report released this week tells me. The American people, we have been taught from the beginning, must move together as one unit if the nation is to endure. But they can not move together unless they think together—and without books common understanding and profitable public debate are impossible.

Store-Wide Event Celebrates Completion of Hope Remodeling

STORY OF GROWTH

From One Clerk Payroll Has Increased to $39,-248 Per Year

The opening sale for Geo. W. Robison & Co., operators of department stores in Hope, Nashville and Prescott, will begin Friday, September 13.

The sale event marks the opening of a fall bargain season that is expected to carry the firm to a new high record business.

The Robison store at Hope also is celebrating its 20th year in business with attractive values in each of nine departments. It is a store-wide bargain festival of new merchandise, latest styles, and low prices.

The Robison house at Hope has recently been re-modeled, and redecorated, and is now one of the most complete department stores in Southwest Arkansas.

The local institution employs 18 sales clerks regularly—a long jump from the year 1915 when the late George W. Robison started in business for himself in the location now occupied by Jack's Newsstand. At that time Mr. Robison managed the store and employed one clerk.

Business expanded each year. Twelve years ago he moved to the present location, West Second street. He started with six clerks, and continued to progress.

The present location was enlarged in 1929, and then the firm established stores at Nashville and Prescott.

Business under General Manager C. C. Lewis has expanded. In 1934 the firm enjoyed the greatest volume of business in its history.

Mr. Lewis attributes the growth and progress of the firm to "service, quality merchandise, and low prices."

"We employ experienced sales clerks," he said. "Every employee has had from 5 to 15 years experience in selling merchandise. They are well-paid."

"Our payroll last year for the three stores aggregated $29,248. Freight and express cost $5,129. Our total operating expense for the three stores was $64,925. The greatest part of this money is spent in the communities where we operate."

"We believe that the fall of 1935 will be one of the best in several years, and we have made preparations for such," Mr. Lewis concluded.

A preview of the sale will be held Thursday night, giving shoppers an opportunity to look over bargain offers, and to inspect the store in its new arrangement. The sale starts Friday morning.

Oysters provide work for approximately 65,000 persons in this country. Plans have been drawn for a $100,000 administration building for the Des Moines airport.

Game at Camden

The Hope High School football team this season may be a dark horse and a menace to opposing elevens. That was the consensus of fans Wednesday who have followed the Bobcats through practice the past 10 days.

Graduation and ineligibility have hit the Bobcat camp hard. Nine lettermen and a lot of green material are left to build the 1935 machine.

How the Bobcats will fare remains to be seen when the season opens. Kennedy, an all-state end, was last through graduation. Ralph Owens and Dennis Richards, stellar guards, received their diplomas last spring.

Gone is the entire backfield, including the fast-stepping Payne, Harper, Madison and Jack Turner, all lost through graduation.

Several Ineligible
Luther Speers, hard plunging full-back of the 1934 team and captain-elect of the 1935 squad, flunked out. Purdue, promising lineman and Brewster, expected to guide the team as quarterback this season, also failed to pass the required amount of work and are ineligible.

Secret, substitute center last year, has enlisted in the Army, latest reports say.

But Coach Foy Hammons is not discouraged. The genial Bobcat mentor observed Wednesday, "I believe we will have a good team this season. We don't expect to be in the championship running. But we will be plenty tough."

Line Equal to 1931
"Prospects for the backfield are not what you would call bright, although the line will be as strong as it was last year," the coach declared.

In the line Hammons has Reese and Ramsey at ends, Anderson and Stone at tackles and Holly at center. Stone especially is remembered for his fine defensive work last season. Ray Turner, substitute back last fall, is attempting to beat Reese or Ramsey out of one of the wing posts.

Returning to the backfield are let-termen Cargile and Stroud. Bright and Ponder are candidates for backfield berths.

Coach Foy Hammons is dicker with several teams for the opening game here September 26, but up to Wednesday had not made a decision. An announcement is expected the latter part of the week.

Hope goes to Camden for the second game, and then come Russellville, El Dorado, Arkadelphia, Texarkana, Nashville, Snackover, Prescott, De-Queen, Malvern and Hot Springs.

Italy's mighty war machine lumbers up to the gates of Ethiopia. The "Conquering Lion" is at bay. . . . The Conquering Lion is Emperor Haile Selassie I, monarch of the half-civilized African state now menaced by strife with the mechanized military forces of a great European power. . . . It's the romantic story of the Conquering Lion and his fabulous land that Milton Bronner has told in three colorful articles written for NEA service. The first article follows.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Writer

"Haile Selassie the First, the Conquering Lion of Judah, Elect of God, Light of the World, King of Kings of Ethiopia."

It sounds romantic. It is romantic, with something of the rather pathetic romance of the last of independent African sovereigns who, with his wild and semi-armed warriors, soon may be pitted against Italian armies possessing the latest equipment for modern scientific, cold-blooded warfare.

If it comes to conflict his last hope would seem to be the aid of those staunch allies—Thirst, Heat and Disease which have wrecked many a white man's army in tropical countries.

It was this fearless trio, in fact, that helped Haile Selassie's great-uncle, Menelik the Second, to repulse Italian invaders late in the last century. These, and Menelik's personal qualities—those of a brave soldier, a clever diplomat and a wise ruler—all of which traits his great-nephew has inherited.

As Tafari, the new Emperor Haile Selassie, was born July 17, 1891, son of the Ras Makonnen. In the campaign against the Italians in 1896, Ras Makonnen distinguished himself. His grateful uncle and Emperor then sent him to Europe, where he successfully performed diplomatic missions in London, Paris and Rome. He owned great estates in the rich country of Harar and so was able to give his son all the advantages of wealth and considerable education for a country like Ethiopia.

The young Ras Tafari grew up, not only a scholar in the Amharic tongue, which is the leading one of the country, but also fluent in French, which he writes as well as speaks.

NURNBERG, Germany.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler in a proclamation read to the Nazi party convention Wednesday rapped President Wilson's famous 14 points and the delegates, assembled from all over Germany, burst into a deluge of applause.

"Where are the 14 points of Wilson and where is the world today?" asked Hitler.

"Germany is no longer a football and no longer the object of foreign maneuvering. She is in security—in security not by facts but by the real power of the nation and by the firm will of leadership."

Poor Farm Problem Put
Up to State Commission,
Says Claude Mann

Action of County Judge H. M. Stephens Tuesday in discharging inmates of the county poor farm so they may share in funds from the state as "unemployables," creates a new problem for the State Public Welfare Commission, Claude Mann, a member of the commission and supervisor of the WFA office at Hope, said here.

Mr. Mann said he had "no idea why the commission will take toward such a move—it's a new proposition."

However, it was pointed out that the amount of state funds allotted to Hempstead county would not be affected, as the law creating the commission requires allocations on a population basis.

The effect of the Hempstead county judge's action would be to reduce the amount to each unemployable sharing in the money.

In discharging the inmates, the county judge said that the County Welfare Board, which receives funds from the state each month would take care of them.

The judge pointed out that the move would take a burden off of Hempstead county. Stephens said the inmates would not be eligible to receive state funds unless they were discharged.

The cost to Hempstead county of keeping each inmate is $9 per month

By the Associated Press
Great Britain Wednesday gave warning to the world through her foreign secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, that the League of Nations must enforce a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Sir Hoare said the League's failure would wreck the main bridge "binding England and the continent."

Great Britain, the diplomat said, will back the League covenant "in its entirety."

No Basis for Peace
GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—Efforts of a sub-committee of the council of the League of Nations to keep Italy and Ethiopia at peace apparently had run into a stone wall Tuesday night.

Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, chairman of the sub-committee of five nations, reported no common ground had been found.

He said that conversations with the Italian delegation, have proved "very far from satisfactory," and it seemed doubtful whether it would be worth while to pursue them further.

Representative of Spain, Britain, France, Turkey and Poland compose the sub-committee.

Continue Their Efforts
With the arrival here of Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, efforts went forward between France and Britain to reach a solution.

Talk still was circulating that the French and British statesmen were trying to get together on a scheme of "international assistance" for Ethiopia.

The British, however, denied they would propose a mandate which would involve political control of Ethiopia.

Ethiopia's "menacing attitude" was given by Baron Pompeo Aloisi, the Italian spokesman, to Madariaga as the reason why Italy is unable to reply in writing to the sub-committee assuring it Italy would do nothing to aggravate the situation.

Following the story in Tuesday's Star regarding the 252-year-old Dutch Bible owned by Mrs. W. P. Reyenga of Emmet Route One, another Dutch Bible 197 years old was brought to The Star office Tuesday night.

This one is owned in Hope, by Mrs. W. T. Smith. Mrs. Smith's maiden name was McCloghgan, of Dutch extraction, and it is her understanding this has been the family Bible ever since its printing in 1738.

The book bears the imprint of Jacob and Hendrik Keur, Holland. It is printed in German script, in the Dutch language, and undoubtedly comes from craftsmen closely allied with those of Haarlem, Holland, where the Reyenga book (1683) originated not so many years after the actual discovery of printing.

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Typoid is an ever-present menace, requiring eternal vigilance to prevent serious outbreaks. In a series of four stories, of which this is the first, Dr. Morris Fishbein tells what typhoid is, how it is caused, its symptoms, its course, and methods of treatment.

New Outbreak Is Laid to Polluted Wells

An outbreak of typhoid fever in the Minneapolis area indicates again that only constant vigilance will safeguard any large community from outbreaks of this disease. About 100 cases were reported to the health department in Minneapolis and St. Paul between May 2 and July 15.

Repeated studies were made of the available water supplies and a few specimens were found slightly contaminated around July 22.

Recently, $20,000 was appropriated by the state executive council, to conduct a complete survey of the city water system. In the meantime, 24 contaminated wells were found in various parts of Minneapolis and were closed by the health department.

The city waterworks supervisor insists that blame for the large number of cases of typhoid fever must be placed on these wells and not on the city water supply. The story sounds like a very old one in relationship to prevention and control of typhoid fever.

If the case rates and death rates for typhoid that existed in 1890 prevailed today, the city of Minneapolis would have this year approximately 9000 cases of typhoid fever instead of 111. With 9000 cases of typhoid fever, there would have been around 900 deaths.

In normal times, of course, the city of Minneapolis will have less than 20 cases of typhoid fever in any single season.

For instance in the years from 1906-1910, Minneapolis had 321 deaths for every 100,000 people. In 1911-1915, this dropped to 10.8; from 1916-1920, it dropped to 5.0; from 1921-1925, it was 1.9; then from 1926-1930, it was 0.8.

St. Paul had a rate of 12.8 in 1906-1910, 9.2 for 1911-1915, 3.1, for 1916-1920, 3.4 for 1921-1925, 1.4 for 1926-1930, 1.1 for 1931, 0.7 for 1932, 1.4 for 1933, and not a single death from typhoid fever in 1934.

It is not surprising, therefore, that a sudden outbreak such as has occurred this summer should arouse some consternation.

NEXT: What typhoid fever is and what causes it.

Reaffirming Faith in Individual Life.

In "Vein of Iron," Ellen Glasgow asserts a faith that seems to save grown old and unpopular nowadays—the belief that there are values in human life that elude all weighing and all computation, and that the individual can by his own inherent dignity and strength give significance to an existence that, on the surface, seems hopeless and defeated.

This isn't a fashionable drama just now, when we hear so much of the need for the individual submerging himself in the mass. We seem to be going to heaven collectively rather than singly, if at all. "Vein of Iron," which happens to be one of the best American novels of recent years, to my action—sounds the other note.

The story deals with a family in the Virginia mountains; an old Presbyterian minister who is untroubled for lack of orthodoxy and who lives in dire poverty, writing a comprehensive book on philosophy; his wife, who endures pain and hardship, with

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Regular Care Makes Skin Most Fair.

Healthy skin—crystal clear, smooth and soft as velvet—is to your appearance what charm is to personality. If you have it, there's not much else you need to worry about.

If you have the kind of complexion poets write lyrically about, preserve and protect it as carefully as a jewel entrusted to your care. Use only the purest soap and finest creams for cleaning, and rich, oily cream for softening and to prevent lines across your forehead and wrinkles around your eyes. Fattening should be gentle. Massage, if any, ought to be done with light, upward and outward strokes.

If you have certain skin defects that you want to correct, get busy with home facials and corrective preparations. Soap and water are enemies of blackheads and minor blemishes. Mild astringents and reliable pore creams discourage large pores on chin, cheeks and nose. An eye cream, applied nightly, will do away with fine lines around your eyes. Bleaching creams will remove discolorations.

Remember, of course, that no preparation will be truly helpful unless you use it regularly and correctly. It is a waste of time and money to apply pore cream only once every week or two. Use it each night for a month and put on mild astringent at least four times a week.

Remember, too, that your physical condition has a great deal to do with the texture of your skin. If you get enough sleep, drink plenty of water, eat sensibly and take some exercise the chances are that your complexion will be lovely. If it isn't, better see a doctor immediately.

Don't try to treat acne at home. This is a job for your family physician.

September

It's September, and a calmness and a sweetness seem to fall over everything that's living, just as though it hears the call of Old Winter, trudging slowly, with his pack of ice and snow. In the distance over yonder, and it somehow seems as though every tiny little blossom wants to look its very best. When the frost shall bite its petals and it droops away to rest. It's September! It's the fullness and the ripeness of the year; All the work of earth is finished, or the final tasks are near. But there is no doleful wailing; every living thing that grows. For the end that is approaching wears the finest garb it knows. And I pray that I may proudly hold my head up high and smile. When I come to my September in the golden afterglow—Selected.

New Sport Paper to Be Published

Article by Coach Hammons Included in the State Sports Survey

An article by Coach Foy H. Hammons on the prospects at Hope High School this year is one of about 50 from over the state on the high school football outlook for 1935 featured in a new magazine making its appearance this week, the State Sports Survey.

Both high school and college divisions are fully covered by sports writers, coaches and other authorities.

Ben Epstein, sports editor of the Arkansas Gazette has a concise survey of high school and college prospects for the state as a whole. Alvin Bell, veteran official, interprets the 1935 rules. A list of coaches of the state and a complete week-by-week schedule of games are other features.

The book is dedicated to three great state football figures who have passed on in recent years: Jimmy Haygood, veteran Arkansas coach, whose eulogy is written by W. H. Rev. Bert Webb in Last Sermon Here

Closing at Hope Gospel Tabernacle on Wednesday Night

The Rev. Bert Webb preached at Hope Gospel Tabernacle Tuesday night on "Determination," and the part it plays in Christian life. His text was Luke 16:13: "The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it."

"The Rev. Mr. Webb said: 'If anyone gets into the Kingdom of God today, it is going to take some effort to do so. The rendering of this same scripture in Matthew says 'the violent take it (the Kingdom of Heaven) by force,' the thought being that those who make earnest, faithful and determined effort are the ones that will get into the kingdom. You should give your life to God in the bloom of youth so that you will have something to give to God. Men want to live their lives until they get old and then surrender to God. Give Him your life while you have a life to give Him.'"

"This pulpit, money, the material things of this world seem to be substantial, but they will pass away, but the things which are spiritual are eternal. The only things that you are going to save are the things you send on ahead. I do not believe that it displeases God for a person to have plenty of this world's goods if they are used aright. How are you using what God has given you; your time, your money, your talents."

"Most people want to go at things, particularly in the business world, in an aggressive way, but when they come to Religion, they are more or less lukewarm. Some folks would like to be Christians but they are afraid of what their friends would say if they really stepped out for God. Does it make more difference to you what your friends think of you than what God thinks of you? One of my instructors in college gave me the following on Determination that has stuck with me, and I pass it on to you. 'If you ever get anywhere in anything you will have to make up your mind that you are going to overcome every obstacle in your way.' If anything in this world is worth our determined effort it is making sure of the Kingdom of God."

Wednesday night is the Rev. Mr. Webb's last here. He has announced as his subject "Don't take your wife's advice." The other members of the party have promised to render several musical numbers.

Saved."

Denies Knowing Fate of Judge

Charged by her estranged husband that she "knew plenty" about the mystery of the disappearance of Judge Joseph Grater in New York five years ago, Jayne Manners, above, blond film actress and former New York showgirl, denied any knowledge of the case when questioned in Los Angeles by the district attorney, who said no action is contemplated against her.

ment before leaders in the Long political machine who crowded his office and assured him of their support.

There were demands for abolition of the dictatorship as Allen pledged his loyalty to the departed Long.

James M. Thompson, publisher of the New Orleans Item and Tribune, whose papers have opposed the political policies of Long, called for peace and demanded dictatorship repeal.

The Louisiana Square Deal Association, through James L. Mehaffey, an active member of the anti-Long group, reaffirmed its platform to destroy the dictatorship.

In a plea for unity, Mehaffey issued a statement in which he called for tolerance of "nothing but clear visioned honesty."

"All political controversy must be put aside and a united effort made to establish true and complete justice," the statement said. "Personalities and individual gains are not important when we realize that our state has been torn by political troubles that have lowered her prestige in our nation."

'Oil for Lamps of China' at Saenger

Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson in Picture Thursday, Friday

Alice Tisdale Hobart's best selling novel, "Oil for the Lamps of China," comes to the Saenger theater Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Hobart spent a large part of her life in China, and after years of collecting her data, spent five years in writing her story of the romance, sacrifice and hardship endured by the men and their wives who are the pioneers in introducing American oil into the Orient.

The picture sweeps from the snow wastes of Manchuria, through picturesque Chinese cities and villages to the torrid interior. There are shots also in the cherry blossom land of Japan and in New York.

Cameramen were sent to Manchuria early in 1934, to make atmosphere shots, more than a year before the picture was started at the studio. Director Mervyn LeRoy also spent some months in China studying the country and the customs of its people before even casting the picture.

Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson and Jean Muir head the cast which includes John Eldredge, Lyle Talbot, Arthur Byron, Henry O'Neill, Donald Crisp and Ronnie Cosby.

Several hundred Chinese work in the picture in roles from important speaking parts to extras.

Crime in Mind.

"Every crime exists in various degrees of maturity in the minds of individuals sensitized for those particular forms of crime. The germ of a crime of this sort is scattered in the minds of thousands of individuals."

"In Louisiana we have to visualize a state of millions of individuals in emotional turmoil during a number of years. These emotions separate groups in the community according to their partisanship for or against the dictator."

"From these groups every possible emotion, jealousy, fear, hatred, anger, sympathy, travels through the psychological network and affects the more sensitive individuals more, the less sensitive ones less and some not at all. It is from the Huey Long sensitive agents that the actor may one day arise. He is caught by an anti-Long current. He is more of a symbol than an individual at the time.

Realized Danger

"From the other angle the position of Huey Long in the network was similarly characteristic and significant. The more powerful the currents in the networks against him became, the more powerful became his fear of attack. In fact, his fear for years never left him. He had to employ more and more bodyguards."

"In recent months, it has been stated, he did not go to a phone booth in a hotel where he lived without his bodyguards. In his last filibuster speech he said this was perhaps his swan song."

"Just before he went to the Louisiana legislative session, he said to his wife: 'I'll die fighting.'"

"This kind of pronouncement was not accidental and not the result of superstition. Every individual feels in critical moments the impact of danger, or hatred, or love which is for or against him in the networks."

"The average man with a small crowd of people who know him has little to fear from this impact. But the man who becomes a public person and who develops a violent opposition, for him these impacts of emotions for or against are life or death."

"Senator Long, because he was a showman and a publicity man, perhaps an artist, was more sensitive to the goings on than the average person. He knew more than the bodyguards and newspapermen and perhaps the plotters and schemers themselves."

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Charlie Hilles is an astute politician who sort of represents the Morgan and other Wall Street interests in the Republican party. You will notice that Mr. Hilles has not been heard from publicly in all the recent tom-tomming over who should be the party's nominee to run against Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Hilles has been busy, however, and you can't help perking up your ears when some of his friends predict that eventually he will reach into the supreme court of the United States and pull out a candidate who will be are many in both parties who think it's a very bright idea.

Stone Pet at Present

Justice Stone is the favorite in these preliminary whisperings. He is something of a liberal and didn't concur in the railroad pensions opinion by Justice Roberts, which would make the latter a target for liberals and labor if he were out where they could shoot at him.

Stone is also an old medicine ball playmate of Herbert Hoover, which may be an important factor. Roberts was once an attorney for the Pennsylvania railroad.

Uncle Andy Mellon, since the pension decision, has been reported ready to put up large sums to nominate and elect Roberts.

The wealthy friends of Mr. Hilles are ready to put up large gobs of money for anyone they think can beat Roosevelt, but are not anxious to spend a nickel on a losing horse.

Mr. Hilles has very little use for Hoover and the general Wall Street idea seems to be that Hoover couldn't win.

Hilles has shown a lack of enthusiasm also for Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, and Bob Lucas, a Knox man, recently blasted Hilles as the dominating force on the national committee who would put the indelible stamp of Wall Street on the party ticket, platform, and convention if other Republicans didn't band together and stop him.

Plays Deep Game

Mr. Hilles is understood to be subsidizing certain Republican stalking horses in the country who think they are candidates, but will be told differently by Mr. Hilles later on. Of course, either Stone or Roberts—neither of whom may want the honor—would automatically disqualify himself if he concurred in any decision against the AAA.

You probably won't get a clear line on what Mr. Hilles is up to until the winter league session, at which the committee will pick a convention city and discuss candidates behind closed doors.

By that time the supreme court, including Stone and Roberts, may have spoken its piece as to the AAA.

Munitions Fight to Go On

Senate munitions committee, who got something less than half a loaf at the first session of this congress, will resume in January the fight for their bills to tax profits out of war and to eliminate collusion among shipbuilders on battleship bids, as well as for stronger neutrality legislation.

Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the finance subcommittee considering the profits bill, delayed action until the last minute and the measure is now packed with treasury experts and legislative draftsmen of the joint committee on taxation.

A finished bill, however, may be ready for consideration by January.

Chairman Park Trammell of the naval affairs committee put the collusion bill in his pocket and didn't even present it before the committee. He is likely to hear plenty about that next session from Senator Bone, Nye, and Clark.

either Justice Owen J. Roberts or Justice Harlan F. Stone.

Such move might provide the Grand Old Party with the strongest candidate available. It certainly would increase the prestige and power of Mr. Hilles, who is the national committeeman from New York and usually has influence with other contiguous delegations.

It would put flesh and blood on the Constitution issue which to date is about the strongest one the party has been able to think up. In short, there

Roosevelt Invited to Legion Session

He May Follow Former State Secretary Colby, Opposition Speaker

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — President Roosevelt may open his national speaking campaign in defense of the New Deal with an address at the national convention of the American Legion in St. Louis September 25 or 26, it was revealed Monday.

The president was visited in his summer residence by National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr. and Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce and a member of the Executive Committee of the Legion. They pressed him to speak at the convention.

It was recalled that Postmaster General Farley had advised the president to make a speech in the Middle West on his tour. Belgrano and Johnson pointed out that under the schedule for his trip to the Pacific coast, Mr. Roosevelt would be passing through St. Louis on September 25 or 26.

The president also was advised that Brainbridge Colby, former secretary of state and outspoken critic of the Roosevelt administration, will make the keynote speech at the convention. Colby is considered likely to attack the New Deal and Mr. Roosevelt would have an opportunity to answer. "Serious consideration" will be given the Legion's invitation, the president told the two officials.

Cardinals Highest Paid Ball Club Except New York Yanks

World Series "Cut" Is Included, But St. Louis Players' Chance at Extra Money Is Greater Than With Other Clubs

ST. LOUIS. — Refuting the charge that the St. Louis Cardinals are underpaid, Branch Rickey and Frankie Frisch produce figures showing that they have received more money in the past 10 years than the members of any other major league organization, with the single exception of the New York Yankees.

The director of the far-flung Cardinal system and the field marshal of its big league unit point out that the Yankee total is higher only because of the presence of the extraordinary Babe Ruth, who was paid the unprecedented baseball salary of $80,000.

Rickey and Frisch include world series swag in their calculations, and why not? The records for the period make it clear that the Red Birds, since the vastly greater chances of reaching the fall fashion show than any other club in either major wheel, Owners go. He. Why shouldn't the noble athletes?

If the blokes in the crimson blazers make it six pennants for the decade, this month, Cardinal players' world series coin for that length of time will total in the neighborhood of $600,000, more if they win from and less if they lose to the Detroit Tigers.

The Yankees have bugged four flags during this stretch of time, but appear out of it this autumn, and with Ruth gone, the Cardinals are well on their way to collecting more cash than members of the New York outfit.

Four Hundred Players
The St. Louis club's extensive minor league operations cost more than $100,000 annually. They will show a net loss of $135,000 this season, according to Rickey.

The Cardinals own 11 minor league franchises outright and support five other clubs. The St. Louis concern invests $1,500,000 in parks at Rochester, Columbus and Houston, and has long leases elsewhere. Branch Rickey and Co. own close to 300 players outright, and control an additional 100.

Rickey and Frisch do not fall back on world series remuneration alone in illustrating that the Cardinal organization is unjustly called a chain gang. Rickey asserts that the St. Louis club has been in the second division of National League salaries in 10 years.

Bill Terry is the only National League manager who is better remunerated than Frisch, whose work as an executive does not begin to compare with that of the manager of the New York Giants.

Dizzy Dean is the best paid player in the senior loop by a lot right now, with a parchment calling for something like $18,750.

Rogers Hornsby drew more money than any pilot or player in the National circuit when he guided the Red Birds to their first grand old world championship in 1926. The Ragged left the fattest player contract in the senior league as far back as 1925 when

Cardinals Cling to 1-Game Lead

St. Louis Defeats Phillies as Chicago Cubs Keep Up Fast Pace

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—A three-run rally in the eighth inning, after Joe Brown had held them to one hit and one run, gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-to-2 victory over Philadelphia Tuesday.

The victory, coming after two straight defeats at the hands of the Phils, enabled the Red Birds to maintain their one-game National League lead over the Chicago Cubs.

Manager Frank Frisch with a single in the sixth inning was the only member of his team to get a hit until the eighth. Frisch's hit scored Bill Hallahan, who had walked, gone to second on Martin's walk and to third on Rothrock's forceout of Martin.

Bowman gave six passes, but he was just wild enough to be good until the eighth. Gelbert started the inning with a single. Pinch Hitter Virgil Davis singled and then came doubles by Rothrock and Medwick. It was the twenty-seventh consecutive game in which Medwick had hit safely.

Curt Davis stopped the rally, but the Phils threw a scare into the Cards before the game ended. Dizzy Dean went to the hill in the ninth and the Phils put two men on base before Dean retired the side.

For the second day in succession, only about 2,000 fans turned out to see the league leaders.

Historians of the future are not likely to refer to it as the World war, but as the 40-year war, or the 60-year war.—Prof. Joseph Remenyi, Cleveland, who says Europeans believe World war never ended.

Controlled debate in both houses would simply be a national disaster. Free debate has killed many a bad piece of legislation and saved millions of dollars to the taxpayers.—Senator Borah.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and making you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c. © 1931 C. W. CO.

Ickes Carries His Fight to President

Quarrel With Hopkins Over 4-Billion Spending Reaches Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Ickes will appeal Wednesday to President Roosevelt in an attempt to have a final showdown with Harry L. Hopkins on the conduct of the 4-billion-dollar work relief program.

Ickes said Tuesday the president called him Monday night.

Making no attempt to conceal his opposition to Hopkins, Ickes disputed the Works Progress Administration (WPA) administrator's recent statement that projects rejected by the WPA would not reach the allotment committee.

Does Your Food Sour and Turn to Gas?

Do you realize that what you eat today is your flesh and blood tomorrow? Also, your strength or weakness? If you have no appetite or if your food sours and turns to gas, instead of digesting normally, you grow weaker and weaker each day instead of stronger and more vigorous.

Do you suffer with sour stomach, flatulence, and a sensation of fullness after eating, due to functional disorders? We strongly recommend centered upon Ras Tafari. They looked askance upon the Emperorship of Lij Jasu, nominated for the post by Menelik himself. When it became suspected that Lij was secretly leaning to the Moslem faith of his father,

Emperor Selassie

King of Kings... Haile Selassie in Regal attire things came to open revolt. This was in 1916, when the attention of the whole globe was centered upon the tragedy of the World war. On October 27, led by Ras Tafari, the rebels fought the great battle of Sagalle. They won a complete and smashing victory over the government forces led by Lij and his father, Ras Mikael. In the resultant rout, Mikael was captured, but Lij managed to escape. The victorious troops entered Addis Ababa and proclaimed Vauditu daughter of Menelik, as Empress. And Ras Tafari was proclaimed Ras of Rasas, the Negus and heir to the throne.

To be King of Kings in Ethiopia had in many cases been more rhetorical than actual. The writ of the Emperor hardly ran beyond his own immediate hereditary domains. The big distant provinces, under their own Ras, were practically independent kingdoms. Ras Tafari proceeded to change much of this. When vacancies occurred, he saw to it that men of his own choosing and devoted to his cause were promoted.

In May, 1921, Ras Tafari led his troops against an army which had gathered around the fugitive Lij, but the latter's forces melted away without giving battle and Lij was made captive.

Captivity Is Removed
He has never been seen since. Popular report has it that he is kept a prisoner, chained up with golden chains as befit his rank. There is a certain lake. And in that remote lake there are some tiny islands. And on one of those islands, rumor has it Lij lives in captivity.

Though his kinswoman was Empress, the real ruler of the country was Ras Tafari, who proved himself a clever diplomat, playing the English, French and Italians off against one another.

But he showed his chief shrewdness in 1923. Before the League of Nations there had been many discussions of the traffic in arms and also the slave trade. Outside of Arabia, one of the chief slave-holding countries was Ethiopia. Ras Tafari feared that, under a mask of humanitarian designs, some European power might seek to expand at Ethiopia's expense. He did a bold thing. He suddenly applied to the League asking that Ethiopia be admitted as a member. There was a sharp discussion and a report finally was made by a sub-committee containing among others, delegates from Britain, France and—ironically enough now—Italy.

They reported that Ethiopia's independence was recognized, as she had concluded treaties with several powers; that the country possessed a stable government and "well-defined frontiers." Oddly enough, Italy, with France, urged Ethiopia's admission to the League as it would pave the way to quicker and more genuine efforts to suppress slavery. Ethiopia was duly voted into the League by the unanimous voice of the Assembly.

Ritally Received in England
Selassie's next great move was to visit Europe. His father had done so as a diplomat, but Ras Tafari was doing it as heir to the throne and, therefore, the first Ethiopian ruler ever to take this step. He arrived in Europe in the summer of 1924 and visited various countries, having his best and biggest time in England. Here he was received and dined by King George. He was given the degree of LL.D. by Cambridge University. He had lunch with the Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the Church of England.

The Archbishop, in a short address, said that never before had a Lambeth Palace received a visit from an Ethiopian ruler, whose church, in respect of antiquity stood in the front rank in Christian lands. Back of it, it had 16 centuries of tradition and, it was even claimed, could trace its origin back to the very days of the Apostles. The Ras also attended evensong in Westminster Abbey. Everywhere he went his grave face and his gorgeous robes attracted attention. Also, he had taken no chances of any powerful chiefs rebelling during his absence. He had in his suite the more important ones—the Ras Hailu of Gojjam, the Ras Seyin of Tigre and the Ras Nado of Gereti. They could share his good time, but they also would be where he could keep his eye on them.

Modernizes Communications
When he came back to Addis Ababa, he introduced many modern devices in the rather primitive capital of a very primitive land. To the telegraph he added the telephone and a wireless station and bought a large expensive automobile for himself. Also he began buying those other proofs of civilization—machine guns, and other modern implements of war.

On August 2, 1928, he signed a twenty-year pact of friendship and arbitration with Italy. They mutually pledged themselves to take no action detrimental to the independence of the other and provided for arbitration and conciliation in case of dispute, without having recourse to armed force. It is this very treaty, in addition to membership in the League of Nations, which Ethiopia is invoking now.

Ras Tafari was formally crowned as Negus on October 1, 1928. Then he had to fight once more little wars within the country. In the spring of 1929 the Ras Goussa, who was husband of the Empress, rebelled. He had been divorced from his sovereign lady. Tafari was completely successful, routing Goussa's army. The rebel Ras himself fell in battle. The Empress did not long survive her ex-husband. She died in April 1930, and Ras Tafari now became Emperor in name as well as in fact. He was formally crowned on November 2, 1930.

Invitations were sent out to most governments and to the aristocracy, and the daimy of Ethiopia, most of the "birds" were accepted. It proved a strain on Addis Ababa, which was not rigged up to receive such a flood of guests, headed by no less a person than the Duke of Gloucester, son of England's king. But the Ethiopians managed somehow to house, feed and honor all their guests.

Incidentally, it enormously enhanced the prestige of the sovereign, who founded a new dynasty, calling himself Haile Selassie. Ethiopians get a new and exaggerated idea of the importance of the country and of their emperor in the world scheme of things.

Tomorrow: Haile Selassie, the emperor and the man.

Wealth of Long A. S. J. Hamilton Has U. S. Guessing Buried at Corinth

Estate, Swelled by Huge Political Fees, May Reach 2½ Millions

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Huey Long accumulated wealth as boss of Louisiana. How much would be sheerest guesswork.

He never gave any accurate line on how much he was worth and never admitted being a "rich man." In his code of politics a "rich man" was not chosen to solve the poverty problems of the masses.

His income, he said, was law practice revenue.

In the last months before he died, the only definite figure—and that represented only partial income—affording an inkling to his wealth became available.

They constituted the percentage he collected as special attorney for the Louisiana Tax Commission in obtaining taxes on corporation property he asserted had not been assessed, and his fees as attorney for the Louisiana Public Service Commission in prosecuting utility rate reductions. A check of records showed he was paid $225,000 by the Tax Commission during six months before his death, and $125,000 by the Public Service Commission.

His contract with the Tax Commission conceded him one-third of all taxes collected by his efforts on unassessed property.

The Public Service Commission fixed his fee in each utility case, compelling the investigated company to pay it under an act Long had the legislature pass.

Long's wealth was a matter of continual speculation. Guesses sometimes ran as high as $5,000,000, but few credited any supposition placing it over $2,500,000.

The federal government kept investigators in Long's financial trail for years, but no indictment for income tax evasion of the type returned against several of his political followers ever was returned.

He owned an impressive beautiful and expensive mansion in the best residential district of New Orleans, and a $16,000 home in Shreveport where he lived previously.

The state of Louisiana is awaiting the state of his will for its first positive knowledge of his wealth.

Futrell Appoints Relief Examiners

Five Men Named to Make Recommendations to State Government

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Futrell named Wednesday a committee to study the state's relief setup and recommend legislation enabling close co-operation with the National Security Board.

The committee includes: W. R. Dyess, Little Rock; Arkansas federal relief administrator, C. P. Byrns, Fort Smith; Elmer Grant, Little Rock; F. W. Scott, Huttig; and John G. Pipkin, Little Rock.

Additional WPA Funds
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Arkansas WPA headquarters was notified Wednesday that Comptroller General J. R. McCall had authorized the release of an additional $221,627 for use on 31 WPA projects in the state.

The details are to be sent this office later.

Robinson Protests
LITTLE ROCK—Arkansas communities that didn't ask heavy federal expenditures for direct relief are, in effect, being punished for their economy and independence.

They can't get work relief money to build waterworks, sewer and schoolhouses through the Public Works Progress Administration, which holds the purse-strings, won't let them hire any help except relief enrollees in the immediate vicinity of the project.

This is virtually what Senator Joe T. Robinson told President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, Tuesday when he asked them to review and approve 28 Arkansas WPA projects totalling $1,500,000 which Mr. Hopkins has rejected.

Telegrams were sent to Washington from Senator Robinson's office here, urging reconsideration of the applications. Their rejection by Mr. Hopkins was announced Monday.

Some were disapproved because relief rolls in the immediate vicinity of each project do not reveal enough men to do the work. Others were rejected because the relative expenditure for each man given a year's employment was higher than the basis established by the WPA.
